"A career can be like a snake and ladder journey, full of ups and downs, but remember, your career is a journey, not a destination." Your career does not start and end when you get a job. You start your career when you begin doing activities at school, playing sports on weekends, or working at your part-time or volunteer job. There are skills that you can develop and steps you can take each time you are faced with your next career transition. Your career will be a rich and rewarding experience that will require you to make many critical decisions throughout your life. So why won't you just leave school and go straight into a job that you'll have for life? Lots of reasons! You might find out you don't suit a job, you might want to earn more money, you may be offered the chance to do something more challenging, or your passion is something else. That's when you need to work through your career decision-making process and review the career you think is the best for you. The Right Hand to Eat helps you choose your career—it doesn't choose you!

For the longest time, parents and children both, knew and believed that Medicine, Engineering, Management and Law were the only true 'careers' which could provide job security and steady paycheques. However, youngsters today couldn't have been more open to trying out offbeat careers. They are bold, patient, resilient and aware of the fact that a career that is in line with their interests has a higher chance of being satisfying. An equal, or probably more, parents are sceptical about these unconventional careers and would rather have their children go in for 'tried and tested' jobs. With 'Steps to Career', the author has attempted to dilute the dilemma of such children and their parents, providing them a wealth of information on the available conventional and unconventional career options, to help the children decide the right career for them, and the process.

Topics include: historical trajectories of the European tourism development process, new structural and geographical patterns of European tourism, the politics of EU enlargement and implications for tourism policy, regional, national and local economic development trends, social and cultural implications of transition and accession, tourism education in the new Europe, and the marketing and re-branding of accession countries.

This work combines a study of contemporary issues in tourism development with a close examination of approaches to tourism research. Looking beyond the much-studied mass tourism industries, leading international academics who are members of the International Academy for the Study of Tourism, explore new issues raised by emerging tourist destinations such as Ghana, Samoa, Vietnam and India's Yundar Valley. A fascinating work, Contemporary Issues in Tourism Development discusses a wide range of topics such as: * reasons for development * tourism development as a strategy for urban revitalization * tourism's links to heritage conservation and regional development * sustainability and the adverse impacts of development * cultural considerations and community participation * the importance of context for individual tourism projects.
