They are often considered one of the best candidates for the reinforcement of the next generation of multifunctional composite materials.

It is essential to assemble the CNTs into macroscopic assemblies resembling traditional fiber-reinforced for fabricating strong, stiff and multifunctional aligned CNT/polymer composite prepregs at satisfactory processing rates. One approach involves incorporating drawable superaligned CNT sheets into high-volume fraction composites through spraying or spray-stretching and winding. The other approach is based on directly shear pressing vertically aligned CNT arrays into horizontally aligned sheets with subsequent polymer infiltration. Both approaches produced CNT composite prepregs with

Chapter 23
